

Working on research questions iteratively

using the example of the use case of "Professionalized fan practices on Youtube"

Establishing a mutual understanding between the participating researchers is essential to be able to tackle challenges of any kind. All of research question, infrastructure and communication of research accomplishments have different demands towards the researchers. Using iterative workflows and mutual knowledge transfer at eye level helps to tackle even the most complex tasks.

